The Natural Resources Trust of Easton (NRT) is a member-supported, not-for-profit, 501(c) (3) organization, incorporated in 1967, whose mission is to educate the public about significant natural and cultural resources and to acquire and preserve land of special character for the benefit of the public. The NRT promotes a land ethic in the community through outreach and educational programming. The NRT maintains its office at Sheep Pasture, located on Main Street in Easton, and is administered by a Board of Directors. The Directors serve overlapping three-year terms; set NRT policy and the annual budget. A small staff, with the help of volunteers, presents the educational programming, maintains the NRT properties and performs the everyday work of the organization. All are dedicated to the NRT mission.

In 1973, the NRT was invited by Elise Ames Parker to use her former residence, Sheep Pasture, as a 114-acre classroom for its environmental programs and the study of nature in an outdoor setting. With the availability of this classroom came exciting new ways for the organization to implement its mission. A program of community gardens was introduced and managed. Farm buildings were repaired and farm animals acquired. A newsletter was published. In October of 1973, the third grade class from the North Easton Grammar School walked down Main Street to Sheep Pasture for its first environmental education program.

That third-grade class pioneered a trail to the establishment of a new outdoor learning laboratory that continues today. In 1979, the NRT became the owner of Sheep Pasture through Mrs. Parker's generous bequest. Twenty years later, the NRT purchased 40 additional acres that had been a part of the original estate from Mrs. Parker's grandson. That purchase increased Sheep Pasture's size to 154 acres.

The NRT acquires ownership of land through outright gift, through "bargain sale" (purchases below market value with grantor receiving the appropriate tax deduction), and through market purchase. NRT also holds conservation restrictions on land owned by the Town or by private citizens who seek to protect the natural features of their property without giving up its ownership. Membership and local support are the cornerstones of the NRT. Membership dues, fundraising activities, in kind donations of goods and services, volunteering, bequests and grants are all important to maintaining the high quality of programs and land stewardship that the NRT is known to provide.

Dear NRT Members and Friends,

The Natural Resources Trust of Easton is pleased to present the 2014 Annual Report to share the accomplishments of the NRT with members and supporters of our organization. Since 1967 the NRT has worked to be a positive influence in the community, from supporting a healthy environment to teaching children about the importance of the natural world. The NRT also offers a unique opportunity for everyone to participate in outdoor recreational activities by having its Sheep Pasture property open free to all members of the public every day throughout the year. The NRT strives to inspire a love of the outdoors and a desire to protect the natural world.

In order to accomplish the diverse goals that serve the multifaceted mission of the organization, we are honored to work with dedicated staff members, exceptional volunteers, hard working community groups, and many supportive businesses. Whether through volunteering time to paint fencing, or through sponsorship of programs and events, it is the combined effort of many people that helps us to be successful each year.

Many projects were completed in 2014 that will allow the NRT to be an active part of the community. Our communications capability increased with the development of our weekly online newsletter and the complete renovation of the NRT's website at www.nrtfeaston.org, allowing the site to be more informative and user friendly.

Thanks to a grant from 3M, Sheep Pasture now has updated trail maps to help visitors navigate the many paths and trailways. A project is also currently in process to create a wonderful open air pavilion at Sheep Pasture in 2015.

Next year we will be working on some larger projects designed to move the organization forward, including installation of the outdoor learning pavilion and a composting toilet for public use. Together, these improvements will provide improved space for property management operations, increase NRT's capacity for programming, and create new opportunities for public appreciation of the natural world.

Meeting the needs and goals of our organization can only be accomplished with the help of a dedicated team of staff members who work hard to make the NRT successful. On behalf of NRT, we would like to thank office manager Jean Crandell, property manager Louis Hain, part-time property worker Richard Ryan, and teacher/naturalists Leslie Whitty, Kristen Bousquet, and Amanda Bettle.

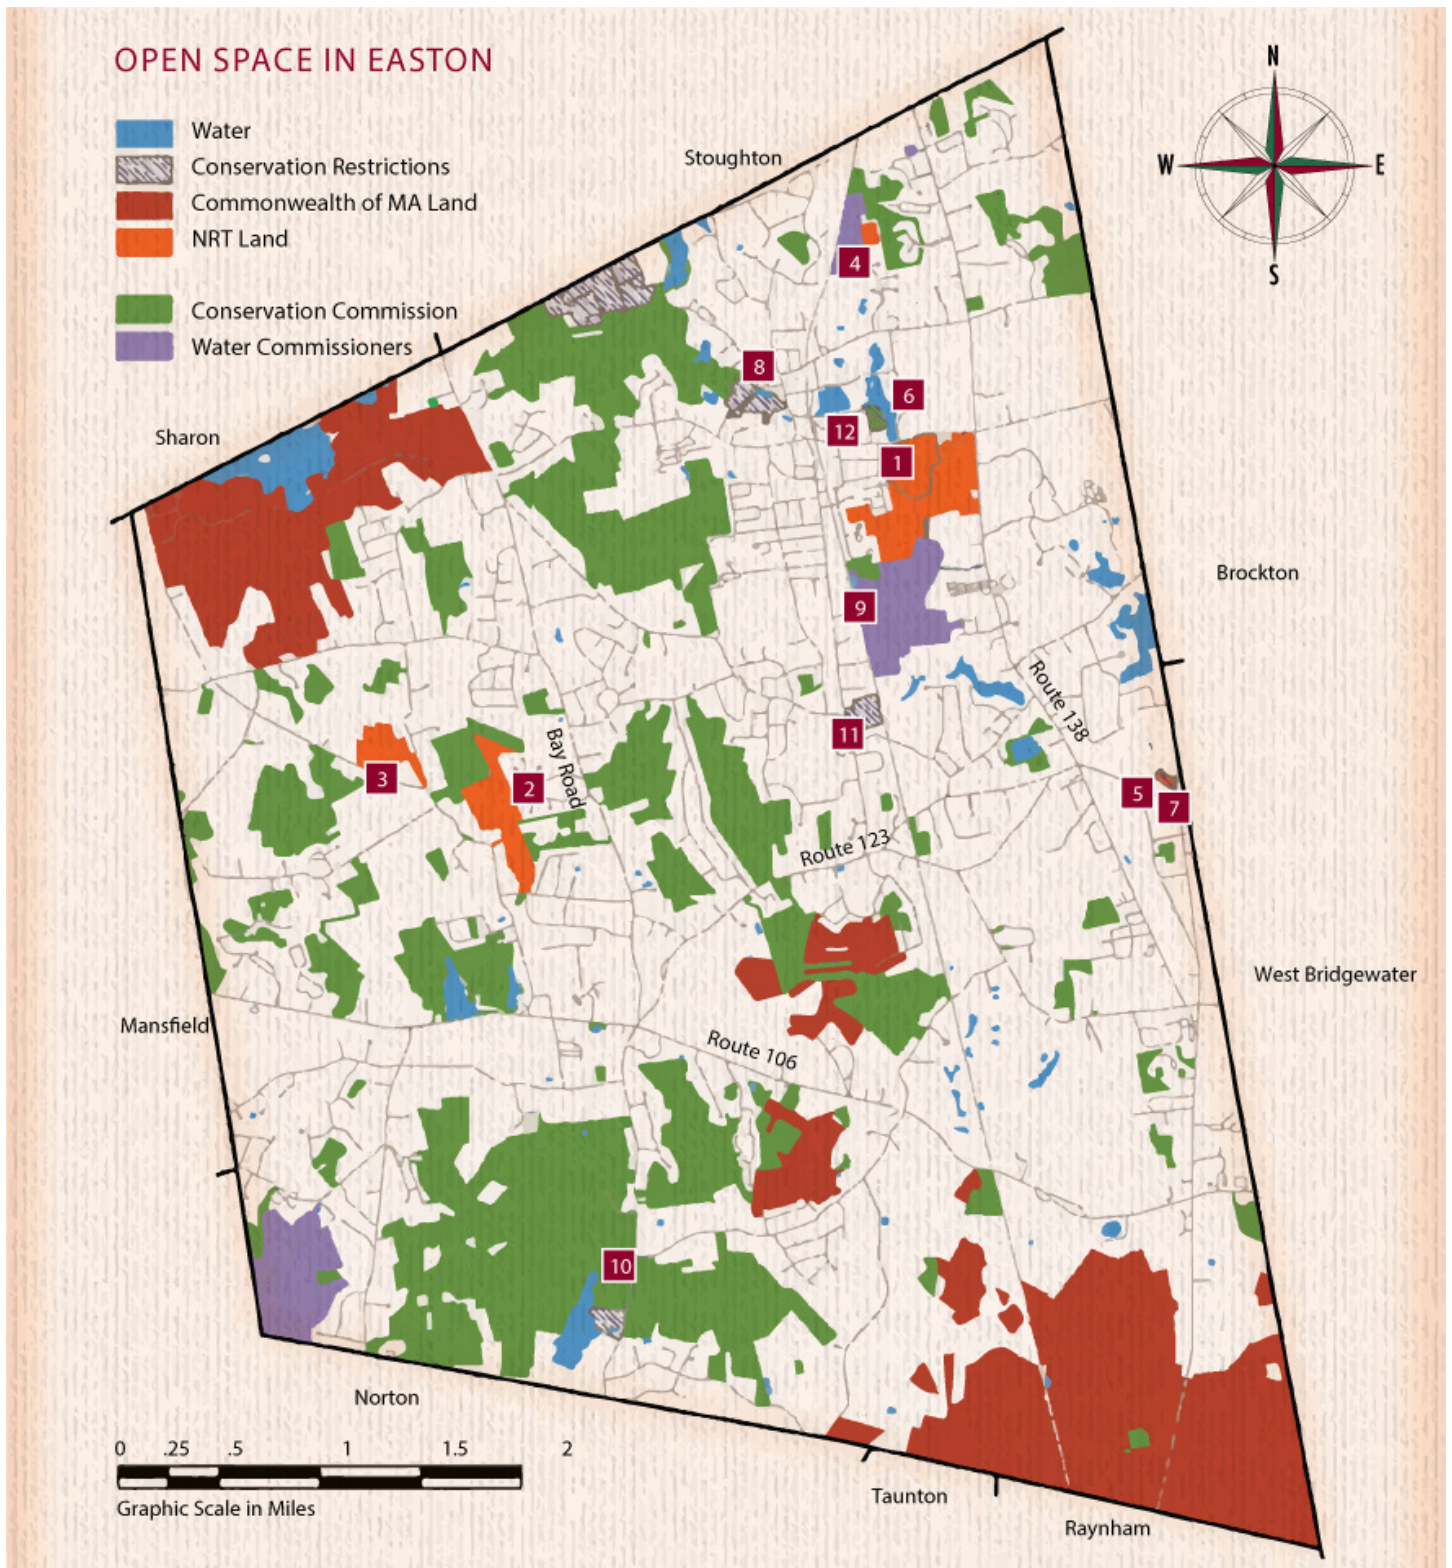

As always, we thank you for your support as we work to bring the natural world to everyone in our community.

Sincerely,

Susan Arkuszewski
Incoming NRT President

Jennifer Cummings
NRT Executive Director

1 Sheep Pasture - 154 Acres

114 acres of Sheep Pasture was donated to the NRT by Elise Ames Parker in 1979. In 1999, the NRT purchased the estate's remaining 40 acres. Sheep Pasture is the home of NRT's farm and headquarters of its environmental education center. Public parking and access.

2 Beaver Brook Woods - 66.1 Acres

Three separate purchases make up the Beaver Brook Woods property, which is contiguous to Fox Mountain, held by the Easton Conservation Commission. The original 49 acres was purchased in 1979, then 10 acres were added in 1980, and the final 7.1 in 1984. Public parking and access.

3 Packard Farm - 29 Acres

In 1996, Edna Robbins donated what we now call Packard Farm to the NRT. With road frontage on both Massapoag and Poquanticut, it helps to connect wildlife from Borderland to Wheaton Farm. No parking, limited access.

4 Springhill / Rock Ridge Lane - 5 Acres

A gift from Corcoran, Mullins, and Jennison in 1997. This open space features some of the old carriage roads of the Ames estates. Limited parking and access.

5 Shoddy Mill Site - 3.3 Acres

A gift to the NRT in 1971 from Kenneth Ray in memory of his wife, Ruth. No parking, limited access.

- 6 1970 Conservation Restriction on Queset Brook donated by Elise Ames Parker (now part of Sheep Pasture)
- 7 1974 Conservation Restriction on Shoddy Mill donated by Kenneth Ray - 3.3 acres
- 8 1975 Conservation Restriction behind Ames Free Library donated by Mr. and Mrs. William A. Parker - 21.2 acres
- 9 1980 Conservation Restriction behind Clock Farm donated by Stonehill College - 1 acre
- 10 1991 Conservation Restriction adjacent to Wheaton Farm donated by Lyn and Ed White - 14.95 acres
- 11 1995 Conservation Restriction on Center Street donated by Alice and Charlie McCarthy - 14.65 acres
- 12 2002 Conservation Restriction on Pond Street and Langwater Pond donated by Oliver F. Ames - 19.2 acres

The Natural Resources Trust of Easton employs two full-time teacher/naturalists and one part-time outreach teacher. In 2014 the education staff served over 5,000 students and individual through programs and outreach activities. They have inspired thousands of people to learn more about the natural world we share.

School Year Educational Programming

With their knowledge and enthusiasm, the teacher/naturalists at NRT offer a wide range of environmentally based programs, from whole day field trips at Sheep Pasture to targeted learning experiences held in individual classrooms. Due to their hard work, in 2014, these school programs were extremely successful. Students from returning schools, including Easton, Rehoboth, Sharon, and Attleboro had wonderful outdoor experiences as they learned about the wonders of the natural world. The teachers also expanded their influence in new communities, including new public school groups in Brockton, Randolph, Boston, and many private schools as well.

Scouting programs, vacation programs, and night hikes all provide additional opportunities for NRT's teacher/naturalists to offer focused nature programs to children and their families who may not otherwise get to enjoy Sheep Pasture. Vacation programs were held in February and April, night hikes were hosted throughout the spring, summer, and fall, and a number of scouting groups visited Sheep Pasture to learn from the wonderful living classroom we are fortunate to have available.

Summer Program Offerings

NRT's Sheep Pasture Nature Camp was a tremendous success in the summer of 2014, with many week-long camp and leadership sessions filling completely. For eight weeks in the summer, children were invited to truly interact with the environment through fantastic activities they shared with the SPNC counselors. Children learned about a wide variety of environmental topics, from all about things with wings to predator-prey relationships, as they sang, played, and explored their way through the summer.

The Leadership Youth (LY) program was very popular with adolescents entering grades 7-10, and many sessions filled completely before the summer was through. The popularity of the program will lead to increasing the program by a week in 2015, giving more children the opportunity to attend.

The Knee High Adventures Program is a great part-time program that is offered for children ages 3-5. For two hours, three days a week, children come to Sheep Pasture to participate in games, learning, and outdoor adventures designed specifically for their age group. NRT's part time teacher, Amanda Bettle, runs the Kneehigh program and looks forward to even more adventures with her young naturalists in 2015.

In 2014, the NRT education staff was also able to work with more summer outreach groups than ever before. Organizations were able to bring children and adults from throughout the local area to learn about the environment and experience the offerings of Sheep Pasture. This increase in outreach services not only assisted the NRT financially, but also gave NRT's programming more visibility in new communities for continued collaboration in the future.

Each year the NRT continues to grow its many events and special public offerings. With the help of partners, volunteers, and staff, the NRT continues to host events and activities that help make our community a truly special place to live.

The NRT Winter Expo was held in January 2014. The snow was excellent this year, and people used sleds and snowshoes to explore Sheep Pasture in the cold. Sponsored by NRT, the Winter Expo was a fun and unique event to promote outdoor winter activities. Winter Expo once again featured a visit from the Boston Snow Dogs, a local dog sledding group, and visitors were able to meet the mushers and dogs personally. Food services, hot beverages, as well as an outdoor fire pit made a cold winter day a great deal of fun for everyone.

The Spring Farm Festival (formerly known as Farm and Fun Day) was a tremendous success in 2014, as over 800 people visited Sheep Pasture on the first Saturday in May. As always, the cows, sheep, and chickens were popular visitor attractions, as were chicks brought by Don Burroughs. Families also participated in arts and crafts, and games, while some people took a few moments to pose for a photo on the NRT tractor! Several local craft vendors were also on hand to display their excellent items. The wonderful weather and fun and happy visitors made Farm Festival a great day for everyone.

June brought the 3rd annual running of the 5K Fun Run, co-sponsored by NRT and the Brockton Girls' Cross Country team. A challenging course in 2014, the Fun Run participants definitely felt a strong sense of accomplishment when they finished their races. Each runner received a shirt and a medal. Photos and run results were posted on NRT's online media so everyone could celebrate their accomplishments.

In October 2014 the NRT celebrated the 41st Annual Harvest and Craft Fair with wonderful weather and thousands of visitors. After several wet weather years, the 2014 event was a wonderful day, filled with sunshine and warm breezes—perfect for an outdoor adventure! This year's fair sported a new layout for parking and crafters, but fairgoers and vendors alike reported rave reviews of the new plan, and the fair itself was a wonderful success. We would like to thank the many hundreds of volunteers and supporters who helped to make the 2014 fair possible. We would also like to thank the North Easton Savings Bank for their continued sponsorship of the Harvest Fair.

In November the NRT's Annual Meeting was held at the Carriage House at Sheep Pasture. At the 2014 meeting the Elise Ames Parker Friend of Conservation Award was awarded to the Easton Public Schools in Easton, MA. The new Easton superintendent, Dr. Andrew Keough, was on site at the meeting to accept the award on behalf of the schools, and took time to celebrate the long shared history of the two organizations. A presentation about butterflies, given by Dr. Sean Mullen, was tremendously informative for all who attended.

In 2014, the NRT worked with many businesses, non-profit and school groups throughout the year on events, projects, and walks at Sheep Pasture. Many groups visited regularly, or also held events or classes at Sheep Pasture, including My Brother's Keeper, Stonehill College, Easton MOMS Club, Blue Dog Animal Shelter, Group One Poultry, Brockton's Animal Protection Center of Southeastern Massachusetts, the Narragansett Sumer Running Festival, Southeastern Regional Vocational Statement of Activities- Cash basis 30-Jun-14

The Natural Resources Trust of Easton is a member-supported 501(c)(3) organization. As such an organization, the NRT relies on the generosity of its members, supporters, and donors to continue to work with the entire community.

In 2014 many individuals volunteered their time to serve on the boards and committees that help the NRT grow as an organization and provide exceptional community resources, events, and programming. Through their donations of time and effort Sheep Pasture and the other NRT properties continue to be wonderful destinations for individuals and families seeking passive recreation opportunities, classes, workshops, and programs. This year we would like to thank parting NRT Board of Directors members William Ames, Kristina Marsh, Randi Graham, James Fowler, and outgoing Board President, Robert Rodgers. Their services have all been invaluable to the NRT and have made a tremendous impact on the future of the organization. We wish them all the best as they more forward.

In addition to our Board members, we would like to thank all of the individuals that give of their time and talents to serve on our committees and at the many events hosted by NRT. There are many people that have been working on behalf of the NRT for years, and their assistance continues to be a source of inspiration. We appreciate all of their efforts and look forward to seeing them again in 2015.

Thank you to our business partners

Each year, the NRT is fortunate to work cooperatively with partner organizations from throughout the local area. We appreciate the support of each of these groups and would like to thank each for their contributions:
